

The diagram consists of two adjacent rectangular frames. The left frame is divided into a top section and a bottom section by a horizontal line. The right frame is divided into a top section and a bottom section by a horizontal line. The top section of the right frame is further divided into several vertical columns of varying widths.